NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 2.—Johnny McCafferty, who is considered one of the shrewdest trainers in the country, to-day was fooled by the track conditions at the Fair Grounds and missed an opportunity to pull off a coup he had planned for months with his recently purchased gelding Ed L. Big Handleap Weights. After a careful study of the Brooklyn and the Suburban handicap weights yesterday local turfmen expressed satisfaction with them just as they did with the Brighton imposts. It was the opinion that Handicapper Vosburgh's work could not have been improved and that all three handicaps will provide problems difficult to solve. A few who were inclined to criticise the weights seemed to think that Mr. Vosburgh treated the Western entries, particularly M. H. Tichenor's fast filly Flocarline, with little consideration, but in view of the formidable prestige of the top-weight division no serious fault could be found. Owners and trainers alike concurred in the opinion that Mr. Vos-burgh allotted the top imposts to Hermis, Advance Guard. Blues, Major Daingerfield, Col. Bill, Sombrero and Herbert with wis-dom. Pennsylvania and Columbia Graduates A new form of college boat racing will probably be instituted this year by a contest between graduate crews from Columbia and the University of Pennsylvania. Both institutions are building up crews of alumnioarsmen and a movement is on foot to bring the graduates together either at the Harlem Regatta on Decoration Day or at the People's Regatta on the Schuylkill on Independence Day. As far as can be ascertained both universities are in favor of such a race. The Columbin graduate crew was proposed by Coach Edward Hanlan to compete for the Watson cup offered for intermediate eights. When it was decided to send the second "Varsity crew to Lake Cayuga to meet Harvard, Cornell, Pennsylvania and Syracuse, the graduate crew decided to meet the senior eight-oared race and two freshmen crews will be picked are Capt. New Yacht for Evans R. Dick. sold the steam yacht Elsa to Max Fleischmann and has ordered a new boat to be built from designs by Gardner & Cox. This boat is to be built by James Bayles & Son at Port Jefferson, and she will be ready early in the yachting season. She will be 108 feet over all, 97 feet on the waterline, 18 feet 8 inches breadth moulded and 3 feet 6 inches draught. The boat is really a large houseboat and she has a plumb stem and very short overhang aft. Below decks aft there will be two single staterooms, one double stateroom, the owner's rooms, which will be the full width of the yacht, and two bathrooms. Forward of the engine space will be the galley, the full width of the yacht; rooms for the captain, engineer and stewards and a roomy forecastle.

There will be two deckhouses. In the forward one will be the dining saloon and butler's pantry, and above this will be the bridge. In the after house will be a smoking room and a music room. son, and she will be ready early in the yachtable as for the first time a woman skater made a strong bid for first honors. The entries were: Gwynne Evans, Miss P. Squire, A. C. Pawson and L. G. Linnell, Miss Squire, of course, was judged by the same standard as the men with whom she competed, but in a majority of the figures she was handicapped by her dress, and she lost to her male opponents. Gwynne Evans, for the six figures skated, won with a total of 141 points; Miss Squire was second with 131 points, Pawson was third with 116, and Linnell fourth with 89 points. The competition was remarkable for the fact that Miss Squire led in the combined figures by a score of 65 to 50 for Gwynne Evans. The figures skated are entirely new and were a year ago partly suggested by King Edward. From now on these figures will have standard acceptance the world over in the figure skating championships.

STARK WINS FIRST GAME OF HANOVER TOURNAMENT. Defeats Conklin of Chicage by a Serve of 800 to 285—Lead Alternates Fre-quently Between the Rival Amateurs. Who Work Hard for Their Points

The fourth annual tournament of the National Association of Amateur Billiardists, the leading amateur billiard event of the country, began last night at the Hanover Club, Brooklyn. Evidence of the interest in the tourney was the fact that spectators took up all the seating capacity. J. Byron Stark of Wilkes-Barre and Charles Conklin of Chicago were the first contesting pair. Stark was the winner by a score of 300 to 285. the style of play being 14-inch balk line.

The bank was won by Stark, who counted The bank was won by Stark, who counted by just escaping a kiss and then missed an easy chance. Conklin missed a simple two-cushion shot, and it was plain that neither player had got his bearings. Both displayed nervousness by wide misses and incourate countering on the second ball at short range. The opening innings were like two novices playing haphazard. The Chicagoan was the first to steady, which he didd in the fifth inning with the first double did in the fifth inning with the first double did in the fifth inning with the first double figure instalment, 26, gathered with a liberality of space between the balls and terminated by a missed mass. In this and his next inning Conklin did a deal of skilful cushion play, but with few symptoms of having the bails in control, going all over the table, and with a brief session of short driving across the balk line.

A three-cushioned bank shot by Stark in the eighth inning earned him applause and started him on his lengthy block of carroms. Freedom of movement and ease of stroke came with the chance to warm up, and he piled up 30 by real balk-line play. It was mostly ball-to-ball scoring until a drive left mostly ball-to-ball scoring until a drive left a bad position and sent Stark to his chair. Speed and close nursing sent Stark to the front in the next inning. One of his shots was a beautiful gyrating masse put through with the help of the rail. Conklin in turn failed to get the balls out of balk on the second shot, and the score was: Stark, 65: Conklin. 63.

On the one side it was bammering the ivories; on the other coaxing them. Conklin was the vigorous applier of; Stark the exponent of the gently persuasive system. The contrasting tactics so far had been equally fruitful. But in the twelfth inning stark took a pronounced lead with as prettily constructed a cluster of 47 as one could wish to see. This made the score 114 to 75 in his favor. Good position play and a fair share of luck marked the run. Fortune was generosity itself once in a slight kiss that deflected an object ball squarely into position.

A special rule of the tournament provides that the referee call fouls, and the referee, Walter Raleigh Helneman, was called on to exercise this unusual prerogative in the nineteenth inning, when Stark brushed chalk off the table with his handkerohief. Conklin is not one to be dismayed by reverses, and in his half of the nineteenth inning he ran 33 by combining persistence with science. He held the balls for a while on the end rail. Later the balls scattered, which gave Conklin a chance to make a splendid one-cushion shot, so acute in angle as to be almost a straight line from the first object ball to the cushion and back to the second ball, and very difficult. At the end of the twentieth inning Conklin had gained so that the score was only 147 to 141 against him.

ORGANIZING BICYCLE CIRCUIT. Probable That Twelve Tracks Will Be Ready for the Riders.

Promoters of bicycle races will hold their fifth annual meeting at the Astor House to-day. The board of control of the N. C. A., after several meetings, feels assured that there will be a national paced circuit this season with eight and probably twelve tracks. Among these will be the Charles River track. Boston: the River Beach track, near Boston:
Providence, New York and perhaps Baltimore, Lowell and Elizabeth. Applications have been received from the latter two and there is to be a new track in Baltimore.
Each track in the circuit will have its regular schedule of weekly races, and each rider will have his three races scheduled weekly, with a guarantee for each race. The circuit will run from June 1 until Sept. 1. and the holidays will be open dates.

It is thought probable that single pace will prevail, although the Boston promoters favor tandem pace. Boston: the River Beach track, near Boston

PARKER THROWS TWO MEN. The "Little Demon" Shows That He is Still a Clever Wrestler.

Some exciting wrestling was seen at the Dewey Theatre last night, where Harvey Parker, the "Little Demon," is meeting all comers this week. Parker had for an opponent Otto Kempner of the German-American Athletic Club, a protege of Eddie Daily, who "discovered" and developed John Plening. Kempner is tall and wiry, and during the first five minutes showed skill. At the eighth minute Kempner got away from a dangerous hammer-lock and his friends in the crowd cheered. But Kempner's triumph wes only short-lived, for at the next attempt Parker applied a half Nelson. Kempner tried to tilt to one side and then bridge. Before he could do this, however, Parker corralled him with a crotch hold and put the local man's both shoulders to the mat. The time was 11 minutes.

John Kelly of Waterbury faced Parker at the matinee. For six minutes the work was as interesting as one would care to see. Kelly, however, became overconfident. He made the mistake of forcing Parker who is at home at this game. After missing a farther Nelson, Parker lapped his man for a half Nelson and slowly brought the Waterbury man to the mat. Kelly, however, kept tossing from one side to the other. Finally Harvey applied a firm hammerlock which Kelly was unable to resist and the bout was over. The contest lasted 9 minutes and 12 seconds. Frank Richheimer acted as referee. Both matches were at catch-as-catch-can style and limited to fifteen minutes. To-night Parker is scheduled to meet Eberhard Halin will receive $25 if he stays out the time. Some exciting wrestling was seen at the Herman came to town A. C. of Fort Eric. Herman came to town from Buffalo and posted $5,000 at a downtown office as a guarantee that the club can hold the mill without molestation from the author-ities. A few days ago the club offered $25,000 for the match and Herman said that the offer has not been rescinded. This is a big incen-tive for a heavyweight bout in view of the fact that purses for boxing contests nowadays are smaller than in former years. However, it may not result in bringing the two together in view of the champion's recent statement that he wants to face Corbett to a finish. Jeffries has suggested Carson City, where battles for endurance may be legally held. The limit at Fort Erie, however, is twenty rounds. Usually contests between big men do not go over ten rounds, but Corbett is a clever, shifty fellow and may be able to stall the boilermaker off as he did at Coney Island when they met nearly three years ago.

Corbett is evidently sincere about meeting Jeffries again, and it was chiefly through his efforts that he induced Herman to bid for the Jeffries again, and it was chiefly through his efforts that he induced Herman to bid for the fray and have the latter post a forfeit. The ex-champion, who is in town, looks well and his appearance bears out the statement that he has been taking good care of himself. During his tour on the road with a theatrical show. Corbett has had daily stunts in gymnasiums. He intends to keep on training so as to be ready should Jeffries decide to fight him. Yesterday he was up betimes and went to a gymnasium where he exercised with the dumbbells, punched the bag and skipped the rope. In the afternoon he boxed and his actions showed that he has not lost any of the skill that made him the most noted boxer in the world.

"My off it to meet Jeffries is no bluff," said Corbett. "I have posted $2,500 with Al Smith and the money has been up a month. I have also another $2,500 with Sam Thall, which makes it $5,000 all told. If he cares to, I will transfer this sum to Al Smith any time he deems fit. His talk of meeting to a finish for a $10 coo bet on the side is absurd. There would be no money in it for us at Carson City and he knows it well enough. Jack Herman has put up $5,000 to show that his club can hold the scrap, and that ought to be sufficient. I am not particular when the fight comes off. The sooner the better, though. I am ready for him at any time. The Fort Eric club has pulled off a number of championship fights, notably the one between Tommy Ryan and Kid Carter for the middleweight title. There was no opposition to that mill and the impression prevails that a bout between Jeffries and Corbett would also be allowed to take place.

POLO.

Protest Sustained Against the Lakewood Team.

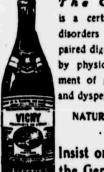

The Polo Association committee has sustained the protest of the Bryn Mawr and Dedham clubs against the award of the championship of 1902-03, to the Lakewood team, and ship of 1902-03, to the Lakewood team, and the victory of the latter is declared null and void. There is consequently no champion-ship team at this time and the Astor Gold cup, which is in the possession of the Lake-wood Club, will be returned to the Polo Asso-ciation, to await the result of the next cham-peopolic townward. The protest was made ciation, to await the result of the next championship tournament. The protest was made under rule 13, against Lawrence Waterbury, on the ground that he had not played a full year on the Lake wood team.

Mr Waterbury was abroad playing for the International cup, until just before the championship matches, and, although he had played on the Lakewood team in the fall of 1901, the text of the rule required that he should have played during one year, from January to December, 1902, for the Lakewood Club, so that the Polo committee had no alternative but to sustain the protest. The text of the rule will probably be amended at the annual meeting in March, but as it stands the Lakewood Club is penalized through the enterprise of one of its members in playing at Hurlingham.
